

Title: When we fall

(Intro)

Falling—

My life is falling,

Falling...

(Verse 1)

My life is falling before my eyes—

What do I see?

The horror of living, loving, and dying,

All fades away from me.

Fades away...

(Verse 2)

What's left but a life not worth living,

To lose all I never had?

The dreams still talk,

But who cares what they say?

(Chorus 1)

My life fades away,

Another lost soul in a world of false hope.

The game ends with the dream—

Forever and always.

(Bridge 1)

The dreamer is a lonely lost soul,

A man who is nothing but dreams and hope.

(Outro – Death Before Rebirth)

My life is falling before my eyes,

And there is nothing.

My life—
Fades away.
Fades away...
Fades away...

Silence. The storm ends. The ashes cool

(Act II – Rebirth)

(Intro II)

What do we leave our children?
What future do we leave behind?
Remember your mistakes and pain,
The lessons learned are worth the price.

Knowledge gained from love and loss—
We have fallen, yet remain.

(Chorus 2)

Like a phoenix, we can rise from the ashes,
Rebuild the world from the damage we've done.

What will we leave our children?

What future will they believe?

(Verse 3)

We're all unique, yet all the same,
We starved to feed the rich, we played their game.

We've seen the fire, we've felt the pain,
But through the loss, something remains.

(Chorus 3)

We can rise like a phoenix,
Turn the darkness into light.

From broken chains, we start again—

A spark of hope within the night.

(Bridge 2)

The past is gone, but not in vain—
Its echoes whisper through the flame.
We find the strength to never cease,
Our quest for truth, our dream of peace.

(Final Verse / Outro)

What will we leave our children?
Will they curse our names or sing our praise?
If tomorrow's built on what we do,
Let compassion light the way.

We have fallen,
But still remain.
We rise—
Like a Phoenix.
